12/17/2012	92	ORDER: This Order addresses two points raised in a December 14, 2012 letter on behalf of defendant Office of the Commissioner of Baseball ("MLB") and named MLB affiliates and clubs (together with MLB, the "MLB defendants") regarding this Court's December 5, 2012 Opinion and Order addressing defendants' motion to dismiss in the above-captioned cases. Second, I now wish to clarify my holding regarding Internet plaintiffs' standing to seek injunctive relief. MLB defendants interpreted my statement that "stated intent to purchase again and the fact that packages are purchased seasonally" established Article III standing to seek injunctive relief to mean that stated intent to purchase again was necessary to Article III standing. However, in holding that "at least one plaintiff who has purchased each out-of-market package plausibly alleges continuing harm," I found only that "Lerner and Rasmussen subscribed to MLB.tv Internet streaming package during the 2011 season," which, given the seasonal nature of these packages and plaintiffs' allegations that they were baseball fans, established sufficient likelihood of a "future encounter.,2(Signed by Judge Shira A.
